

Just talking to the moon

Words & Music by Dave James Hendrikse

My eyes don't shed tears, but boy, they still bawl
When I'm thinkin'
The first time I saw you and baby, you threw me your smile
And the roadside attendant i guess he was nervously joking
As you passed on the way, you changed dawn's ribbon of light

Bursts through the dark, a night i would always remember
Like a break in the clouds, something new had begun
And it's taking control, mysterious, incredible feelin'
We we're about to explore but the lord took my baby away

(Chorus)

I'm just talking to the moon. In the hope this is over soon
I will strain to hear the answer. Spirits will sing, but the devil will fiddle and leave mehere but pain.

Just talking to the moon. In the hope this is over soon
When you're living through the rain
Or your clouds don't look the same
Wounded deep inside or you're blinded by your pride

Caught in a glance, but loneliness creeps in my window
I work so hard just to hide my emotions, today
With the waters that flow past my boat, it feels like i'm sinkin'
All my heroes and legends, have fallen to idols of clay

(Bridge)

Yesterday morning i whispered your name, now I cry
Today my hands are trembling of last nights bottle of wine
The feeling of weathering this storm each and every day
I feel i've been losing myself in this moment of pain.
